The armed steam-launches cannot stay at Kok-fow for ever, and the moment they are despatched on another errand the flower boats will be completely at the mercy of the robbers, as they are all moored at a distance from the shore and away from immediate succour on the mainland. THE MONGKOK OPIUM CARE.

This was an appeal from the decision of Mr. of to him. H. E. Wodehouse, given in the Police Court on the 17th September, whereby three men were fined $500, and three others $50, for "being in of Bale is void. possession of raw opium in quantities less than Two women were up before Mr. Robinson at one chest." they had the contests of Ordinance was interpreted by the digistrate to mean that the opion must be be taken out of the chest under any culture trances; unless the holder had an export permit. The owner of the opium in question, the employer of the appellants, was a large dealer in opium, and had a retail license, but he did not prepare his own oplum, the Farmer retaining a monopoly of that, Therefore, when he bought these twelve chests, he got the Farmer to take out removal permits in his own name, which was the usual course. It was not disputed that he bought the opium in the regular way, but it was asserted that there was some trick played, although there was no evidence to justify that inference.

The Acting Chief Justice pointed out that the only question the Court had to decide was as to whether the opium was in quantities less than one chest-there was no charge of removing it without a permit.

Mr. Francis continued that according to the letter of the Opium Ordinance a man who had a chest of opium could not open it unless he was a licensed dealer. The employer of the appellants was a licensed dealer, and was therefore justified in breaking bulk, with the consent of the Oplum Farmer. But with respect to the definition of "quantities less than one chest," the Ordinance simply defined a chest as " package, with the opium therein, such asis usually imported by merchants in the Colony." If that was to be read literally, if a chest was broken or damaged in any way, say in a godown, and the contests got loose, the owner would be liable to conviction. If a chest in a ship's hold burst, and any balls got lost or stolen, the captain would be similarly liable, although he was undoubtedly car. ying large quantities of opium. The Ordinance numbers really defined the quantity which went to a chest, and if it must be read strictly he submitted that he was cotitled to have the decision of the Magistrate reversed.

The Attorney-General, on behalf of the respondent, submitted that the sentence of the lower Court, if not good on the grounds on which it was based, would be good under section it. and that the Court had power to return the case to be dealt with under that section. But with respect to the decision as it stood, he argued that the appellants could not be properly in possession of the opium, because their employer was not properly in possession, under the Ordinance. The owner of the opium had no removal permi -it was the Opium Farmer who had it-and yet it was not the Farmer who was removing it. Why that arrangement was carried out he did not pretend to know.

The Acting Chief Justice pointed out that the Ordinance omitted to require a permit for the removal of a chest or chests—only for quantaties less than one chest.

The Acting Attorney-General argued at some length that sections 6 and 11 covered all quantities by implication.

His lordship If the offence is "having opium in quantities less than one chest" I do not see how an offence has been committed. You are trying to make the chest part of the opium, and I don't see how any argument can do that.

The Acting Attorney-General concurred. His I rdship-Supposing the wording of the section was altered so as to say, instead of " have in his possession or custody less than one chest! "in quantities more than one chest" Would anyone for a moment say that these men had not got more than one chest in their possession ? If that were the defence the prosecution would have succeeded, would not they? How can they possibly succeed in this case. ? There cannot returned to the Police authorities on no other | be both more than one chest and less than one chest. You see the expression is "less than one.

A SUSPICIOUS FIRE. At the fire inquiry respecting the pawnshop at Queen's Road, West, begun last Monday, and which had been going on for the last three days at the Magistracy, the replies elicited by Mr. Wodehouse the investigating Magistrate, from the Chinese employes of the pawnshop in question were vacillating and prevaricating in the extreme, and, owing to this, have led to grave suspicions being entertained as to the fire not having arisen from accidental causes. The low-shul-poo, or daily cash book, was missing from the pile of business books alleged to have been saved from the fire, which were produced in Court, and it was apparent that its, whereabouts was known to some of the witnesses; but for some reason unexplained, and dwelt upon by the magistrate in his final remarks on the subject to-day, this knowledge was persistently denied by them. Mr. Skutt, the you that you could have a cabin to yourself agent of the North German Insurance Company. The cable next to this is dignified by the high immediately afterwards the Government troops which will probably have to suffer from fire, stated that from the books produced and which had been examined by him, he found that there were entries of goods to the value of $10,400, which had not been mentioned in the stock-book.

Mr. Wodehouse then, having called the Chinese employer of the pawnshop before him, addressed them, saying, that from certain facts obtained, he was disposed at first to judge favorably of the causes of the fire, and believe that it was due to accidental causes. But unfortunately the evidence further adduced during the inquiry was given in such a way that it was impossible to arrive at the real origin of the fire. He was certainly convinced that they had an idea how the house got on fire, but for some causes unexplained, they were unwilling to state them. The low-shul-poo was not produced, and this was a suspicious circumstance, coupled with the fact that the evidence given by them had been given in such a shuffling manner. The Insurance Compinies' Agents had been present throughout the case, and, he was of opinion, could prosecute them; but the Court had nothing to do with that. The evidence showed that the shop on the 23rd October had nearly $12,000 worth of goo's in it and he hardly thought that the suppression of the low-shui poo had been done in order to defraud their customers of their proper claims. The cash book not being forthe ming rendered further questions useless, and the inquiry would be therefore closed.

FROM SAN FRANCISCO IN THE " BELGIC!"

(BY A CORRESPONDENT). The steamship Belgie has just completed her 10th voyage from San Francisco, bringing with her as far as Vokobama og cabin passengers and between 700 and 800 Chinese. We call attention to the cabin passengers in particular, because og, if not the highest, is at least an unusually high number, and it puzzled us to know how they had been accommodated. That they could have had princely accommodation was out of the question. A few may have been fortunate and secured cabins as good as any to be found in ocean-going steamers. But what of the

To say what we do most by some eight hundred savages, weather it is doubtful whether state-room "B." shortly after the massacre at "old Dog's hill. can be reached at all. If however, you are bold, physically strong, active, and have made up your mind to go to bed before dark, go in the door by dodging waves and a possible corpse broken loose from some coffin. Inside you may find a foot or so of water on the floor, and the depth increasing every time a wave strikes against the door ... The only refuge for you and your baggage is the top berth, where you sit in terror, praying for the dawn. After a stormy night in state-room "B," which we fancy has been so initialed from its badness, you begin to feel that the O. & O. Company did not intend to flatter you when they smilingly informed sounding title of state-room "D." This may have been some reference to the language of its first

Whilst you are on the Belgie do not confine your attention to deck cabins only, but look at one or two of the ordinary dens, say for instance den Number One. This is entered from a narrow. passage way, leading to the bath-rooms, &c., where traffic and noise from early in the morning until late at night is at a maximum. Near to it are the electric bells, which, as the service is bad, are constantly ringing. One side of this den is the drying room, on the other a bath-room, on another a boiler, and overhead a kitchen, steam pipe runs! through the room, and it. dark. The gentleman who paid 200 dollars the privilege of occupying this little inferno slept, like many others, in the saloon. So much for the state-rooms, and now for the service. To put it briefly, the servants were like the rooms-one or two were passable, and the rest bad. When you rang a bell you might command attention or you might not. If you were answered it was ten to one whether the attendants understood anything but Chinese. On enquiry you learnt that a scratch team had been engaged who were paying a trifle for the sake of a passage; what guarantees the Company had with the various members of their team, whom we presume had been engaged for reasons of economy, we do not know, but we do know that when complaints were made respecting the disappearance of money and small articles from cabins, passengers were told that such things ought to have been deposited in the ship's safe, or at least ought to have been locked up. To some extent the retort was sound, but surely there is a limit to the kind of servants which a Company engages, but at the same time declines responsibility for their actions! When a passenger pays his passage in a vehicle where attendance is expected, he would not like to be waited upon by a professional pickpocket who had paid the owner of the vehicle for the privilege of a ride.

The cost of travelling by the O. and O. is about twelve and a half dollars per day, whilst on the P. and O. running along the coast of China it is about four dollars per day, and sometimes even less. [Our correspondent is not quite accurate here. Fisteen dollars per day would be nearer the mark.—Ed.] 'Under these conditions somewhat better treatment is required.

Certainly we do not blame the officers of the Belgic, or consider them in any way responsible for the irregularities we have enumerated, but on the contrary we tender them our sympathy for being placed in the awkward position which their employers force upon them. In conclusion we trust that the O. and O. Company will consider whether they are acting fairly towards the travelling public by charging them 200 dollars for a den roofed with corpses, and whether the rate of 121 dollars a day does not demand better treatment than they have been pleased to accord to the passengers on the 19th trip of the Belgic.

THE OUTBREAK IN FORMOSA.

The following proclamation has been issued in Formosa with the consent of Liu Ming Chuan, the Governor of that island, by General Cheng commanding the troops now operating against the "Old Dog Hill" savages who massacred a force of about four hundred soldiers last month, particulars of which disaster were duly chronicled in these columns :- With the full approbation of His Excellency, the Governor, hereby offer the following rewards for the heads of any of the insurgent savages concerned in acts of rebellion against the constituted authorities, and I now call upon the military colonists and people inhabiting the border villages and barrier-stations to exert their utmost efforts in bringing to me the heads of such savages. . #### AN INSURRECTION IN THE NORTH.

Late advices from the Amoor region, Upper Manchuria, state that a body of over a thousand mounted insurgents have captured a large town. called Lan-pel-tuan, which they have turned into their head-quarters to raid upon the towns and villages lying in its vicinity. In obedience to orders from the Tartar Lieut, General of the Amoor, a strong body of cavalry and infantry were sent against the bandits at the beginning of last month and in a battle that ensued were worsted-as usual. Reinforcements, consisting of two battalions of disciplined troops, were, at once pushed forward and another. battle was fought resulting in heavy casualties. Both sides claimed the victory; but as the Government troops had to retreat, and as telegrams have been sent to Tsi-tsi-ha'rh, the capital of the Amoor region, for reinforcements we rather incline to believe the insurgents were again successful. The General who commanded the Government troops was killed in the battle. It is also reported that the rebels were largely reinforced by deserters from the troops opposed to them at the conclusion of the battle, and that they are now making preparations to march against Tsi-tsi-harh itself.

The Amoy Amateur Dramatic Club has been resuscitated from the ashes of a dead past, and has started life under what are considered favorable auspices; but I suppose, like everything else in Amoy, it will gradually die off after the first " spurt."

Training for our annual races has commenced in carnest. The griffins imported are thought to be a good lot, all round, and two or three very likely ponies are included in the mob. I notice some new "jocks" hard at work on the sands, trying their hands-or would it be more accurate to say their heads?-in the morning gallops. time ago that he intended sending up some of scarcely rely on such support !

There was a sort of belief here that we could turn out a fairly strong eleven, but that has been exploded, and we shall have to fall back on lawn tennis.

I suppose you have already heard that the Indo-China Co's steamer Fooksang arrived on the 2nd inst., bringing a junk's crew of sixteen men, whom she rescued from a dismasted junk the previous day to the north of Namoa Island. Such a deed as this certainly calls for some recognition from the Chinese authorities.

SOME CRICKETING STORIES.

-Echo.

"I feel myself peculiarly qualified," says Mr. Horace G. Hutchinson, in his little brochure with the above title (Longmans), for addressing the cricketing public, because, being myself a duffer.' I am able to enter into the delights and difficulties of the game from the point of view of the great majority, and, knowing that myjopinion will be universally disregarded, as worth nothing, have no hesitation in giving it with perfect freedom, and without the slightest sense of responaibility." Here are a few samples of Mr. Hutchinson's "Saws and Stories":--

"I do not understand your cricket," said foreigner to me. "To me it do appear that i proceed upon wrong principle—that you are what you call penalised when you make the good stroke. For when you make the good stroke you do have to start away and run : like the diable. But it should be the man who plays badly-he should run, and the man who plays well rest. Instead of which, death of my life! it is the man that gets what you call bowled out who is allowed to sit himself in the pavilion all the afternoon, in the shade, and enjoy himself." A BIG HIT-157.

We were lasily discussing the question of the longest hit that ever was known. Each had contributed his humble mite offiction. One had seen a tenner (would they were more common) on Cowley Marsh: another remembered an elevener on Chatham Line : one bad seen a ball picked up by a cow and the batsmen ran-115 another had seen a ball wedged up the spout of France, and Germany by all trans-Atlantic lines a pump, and they ran'27. Then a warrior who | of Steamers. had been silent, spoke in this wise; "I think I know the largest number ever scored for one hit. It was a scratch eleven of the Sappers, and we were playing against an eleven of the Hanwell Lunatic Asylum-they were temporarily sane lunatics, or believed to be so, but the lunatic at long leg fielded a hard hit so brilliantly that in his excitement, instead of rates. Special reduced rates granted to Officers returning the ball, he started off with it across of the Army, Navy, Civil Service, and the country; of course, with all the field in pursuit ! Imperial Chinese Customs, to be obtained on and before they could catch him and bring back. application. the ball the batsmen had run 157." No one else cared to try any more, after that.

BULLY THE PRENCHMAN. For many years I used to tell that story, and Pacific or Canadian Pacific Railways. it "took the cake " without question. It is but | Passengers, who have paid full fare, re-embarkquite recently that I have found it challenged by ing at San Francisco for China or Japan (or a tale that bears every mark of originality: "The vice versa) within one year will be allowed a match was at Boulogne," said the narrator, "but discount of 10 per cent. HOW'S THAT UMPIRE? No good umpire should travel out of his province to give extra-judicial dicta. We have all heard of the umpire who, when the bowler asked "How's that ?" responded admiringly "Beauti ful !" This was at least complimentary, if not satisfactory, but some of these extra-judicial

In all races, three ponics from two opposing umpires dicta are neither the one nor the other Mr. S-was many years ago captaining a scratch eleven against an eleven of potters in South Devon. It was an excellent match. The last potter was in, they had two runs to make to tie. The batsman played a bail to cover-point "Come along !" said he, starting to run. "No.

I tell'ce. Get back, mun !" said the other potter' at the other end. So the striker turned in mid-career, and in so doing slipped The ball was well returned to Mr. S-at the wicket. He promptly knocked off the bails and, for form's sake, appealed to the umpire "How's that?" (It was the potters' umpire.)
"Not out." "What?" said Mr. S-astounded. Then, picking together the stumps, he got them all upright avain and the bails on before the potter succeeded in scrambling back into his ground. "Well, how's that, then?" he asked. again knocking off the bails, with the ball in his hand. "Not out!" came the sturdy answer. this time with a postscript; "and if yer ask We are all anxious to have "An Old Sportsman" again I'll punch yer bloomin' 'ead." "Then," up in Amoy to assist in making things a bit said Mr. S-relating the story, " I thought it was ively at race time, and it was rumoured some time for me to go on to bowl, and I bowled one ball which went ten yards wide of the wicket, his famous racers; but I suppose we can and nearly killed point, and away it went into the furze bushes for four wides, and has never > CRICKETERS CLASSIFIED. Cricketers may be classed in order of ability much on the lines of the historic classification of the egg. For as the egg is commonly susceptible of fourfold discrimination in respect of the relative freshness of particular specimens—as I "The new laid egg" (which we hope to get for breakfast), 2, "The fresh egg" (which may be used without offence in a pudding), 3, "The breakfast egg " (whose white is comparatively innocuous for glazing pastry) and 4th and lastly, "The egg "-simple, but not always pure-(a useful missile of political warfare); so, too, of cricketers we may likewise say that we have I. "The first class cricketer," 2, "The good cricketer," 3. "The keen cricketer," and 4, "The cricketer," which last includes those who play at but do not play cricket-a vast difference-ef hoc genus omne.

A bowler lays himself dangerously open to the retort courteous when he takes upon himself toreason with his field on their lack of activity in fielding hits off his own bowling. On one occasion when Mr. F-returned from a somewhat leisurely pursuit of a hit off Mr. B--'s bowling, the latter said to him "Why did you not run after it faster F--- ?" to which Mr. F--replied, with pointed brevity, "Afraid I shouldn't last the distance."

On the other hand, it is over zealous, and scarcely courteous to the bowler, to start off before the ball is bowled, on the assumption that it is about to be hit to the neighbourhood of the boundary, "I was fielding cover point to D-B--'s bowling," said Mr. R--"D-used, in those days, to bowl fast, with the third ball of the over slow; and this slow ball had been past me for 4 for the last three overs in succession. So, the next over, as Dwas just winding himself up for his third ball, I started off running. Unfortunately Dcaught sight of me. "Where the deuce are you. off to? said he. "Oh, I'm very sorry," I said. "I didn't think you'd have seen me; but thought if I started now it might only be a three-er." Mr. B-never lived down the memory of that story.

SCOTT'S Emulsion of Pure Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites is especially adapted to all conditions where the tissues are wasting away from inability to digest and assimilate ordinary food. The combined virtues of the Cod Liver Oil and Hypophosphites produce a marked effect in such cases. They restore the wasted tissues, create an appetite, make new blood, heal the inflammation of the throat and lungs, and increase the flesh. In short they form the finest combined food and medicine that can be given the invalid. Any Chemist can supply it.-A. S. Watson & Co. (Ltd.), agents in Hongkong and China .- [Advi.
